No. 3362.

The U. S. Circuit Court, Judge NELSON presiding, will open to-day. Since the death of the lamented Judge Thompson, the whole of the duties of the Circuit and District Courts have been performed by Judge BETTS, in addition to those of the U.S. Bankrupt Court, an amount of labor which few can properly estimate, but which has been performed with the most persevering energy and devotion.—[*N. U. S. CIRCUIT COURT—Monday—Before Judge Nelson.

The Case of the Swallow —The trial of William Burnett, pilot of the steamboat Swallow, on an indictment for manslaughter, was resumed by Ogden Hoffman summing up on the part of the defence. The learned gentleman was followed by the U. S. District Attorney. Judge Nelson charged on the law and the facts. The jury retired about half past 4 P. M., and after an hour's absence returned with a verdict of not guilty. Burnett was immediately discharged, and received the congratulations of his friends. The court then adjourned.
